With First Fall Month, Society Decides to Turn Homeward—Many Interesting Doings at Resorts—Nancy Wynne Happens Into N. Y. Ritz

SEPTEMBER is a nice kind of a month—everybody is beginning to think about coming home and things begin to start up for the winter, and it all gives you a very pleasant feeling as if it were already cold enough to have a fire in the fireplace, and you are sitting down in a comfortable chair before the fire to spend a few delightful hours in "the land of Let's pretend."

MISS MARGARET DUNLAP

Miss Dunlap is spending the summer at Newport with her aunt, Miss Julia Berwind, and was a constant spectator at the Newport Horse Show at the Casino last week.

NINA BAUGH, in other words Mrs. Arthur Baugh, who was Nina Archer, you know, is doing a fine work for the soldier boys up in Jamestown this summer. She, together with several other summer residents, has organized weekly dances for the men of Fort Wetherill and Fort Getty, which are both on Conanicut Island. It is rather interesting to learn that there is no infantry in Rhode Island. I had never thought of it before, but, of course, Rhode Island is principally coast line, so it's natural and logical that the men of the N. G. R. I. should all belong to the coast artillery.

They had the first party in the guild house connected with St. Mark's Church on Friday of August's last week, and the boys did nearly all the entertaining themselves. Harrison Morris conducted the evening, and Jacqueline Greene, the daughter of Captain Greene, gave a killing monologue of the "Department Store Girl." After the entertainment Mrs. Baugh and a number of women served sandwiches and lemonade and the band of the company played the dance music. The men were all from Providence and Pawtucket, and exceedingly nice as well as extremely patriotic.

One big fellow was pointed out to me as having cried when his name was not drawn among those who were to leave immediately for France. It appears the day before twenty-nine men of each Rhode Island company were asked to volunteer for immediate sailing for France, and instead of the required twenty-nine the whole of Company 3 volunteered. So, of course, they had to draw lots and only twenty-nine could go. It was hard for the whole company, for they wanted very much to be together. Most of them were Brown College boys and they all had the greatest amount of talent. They sang and danced and recited and did very remarkable exercises.

Well, that night started things going, and the little guild house has been a gay place twice a week since then. It is also used for the Red Cross work there.

CERTAINLY the war has had and is having its effect on women in all stations of life, of high or low degree, and I noticed a rather distinct change in the expressions of the women in the boxes about the small oval at the Newport Casino. There was something more to live for than just greeting one's friends and acquaintances. Most of those richly dressed mothers had sons already in France, many others dear ones in training in the camps for the coming service, and there were very few idle fingers as they sat in the boxes and made socks, sweaters for army or navy, wristlets and other articles which will swell the coffers of the Red Cross. There are not many really out and out frivolous women these days.

OF COURSE there were some Philadelphians there, and seldom have I seen a cuter sight than the two small children of Doctor Stout, who were dressed in brilliant red riding coats and caps as they rode their ponies about the oval, which, by the way, is quite the smallest I have ever seen.

Mrs. William Diston was the first person I cast my eyes upon on entering the show grounds. She had one of the end boxes and looked stunning in a pearl-gray frock, topped with a wide-brimmed lacy black hat. Margaret Dunlap looked very well in a fawn-colored suit and high crowned coffee-colored hat, the only trimming on which was a wide band of deep red velvet. Miss Berwind was in the box also, and looked very well in a frock of gray voile and white.

Of course Cordelia Duke was everywhere on the stand and about the oval. She is not really pretty, as her features are not perfect enough. In fact, if you pull her apart, her nose is too large for the rest of her; but, indeed, you don't notice it, she is so cunning and attractive, and the rather large nose really gives more character to the face than a smaller one would; so what will you?

IT'S a funny thing how many persons will do things when they are away from home that they would hesitate to do here. And, after all, it is a bit risky to sit in the Ritz rotunda in New York and sip a cocktail and smoke a cigarette and not realize that perhaps a Philadelphia might walk in just exactly what N. Y. did, you know and catch you at it. I could not help but suggest a bit, because really

MISS LONGSTRETH WEDS ARMY OFFICER

Early Autumn Weddings Are Made Picturesque by Khaki Uniforms

Undoubtedly the war has changed many wedding dates and brushed aside many plans, but it has given an added charm to the summer weddings. There is nothing quite so picturesque as khaki, and when it is seen in church with a proud, smiling bride on its arm it presents a most attractive appearance. There have been a great many of these military weddings this summer, and one of the most interesting ones took place today when Miss Eleanor Longstreth, daughter of Lieutenant Commander Charles Longstreth, U. S. N. R., and Frederick Morris Perot, Sharp, W. S. A., of Denver, Col., were married at noon in St. Clement's Church.

Miss Longstreth had Miss Eleanor Yeager as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Ellen Sharp, of Denver, Col., a sister of the bridegroom; Miss Lois L. Jackson, Miss Carolyn Sheppard, Miss Mildred Sheppard, Miss Katherine R. Hunter, and Miss Margaret Morris Perot. The flower girl was Miss Nancy Penney, a cousin of the bride. Miss Longstreth wore a gown of white satin and tulle, embroidered with the colors of the train. Her veil was of tulle arranged in a Dutch cap effect, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, white orchids and gladioli, and a small bunch of pale blue crepe de chine with a pink ribbon and a black tulle hat. She carried a shower bouquet of sweethearts. The bridesmaids wore pink crepe de chine and white veils. The groom wore khaki. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. S. A., of St. Clement's Church. The best man was Lieutenant John M. Johnson, U. S. A., of Alabama, and the ushers were Lieutenant Robert A. Wilford, U. S. A., Lieutenant John S. Maloney, Jr., U. S. A., Lieutenant William K. Cobb, U. S. A., Lieutenant Gordon G. Heine, U. S. A., and Lieutenant Robert A. Bringham, U. S. A. The wedding was followed by a small reception at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Supple, in Merion.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, and the groom by her mother. The bride is wearing a white headed georgette crepe, with a veil of tulle caught with sprays of lilies of the valley. She will carry Bride roses and eucalyptus. Miss Robinson will be bridesmaid, and will be attended in a pink crepe de chine frock. Her bouquet will combine pink roses and pink sweet peas.

Mr. Frank E. Gunter will be the bridegroom's best man. The ceremony will be followed by a reception for the two families and a few friends. After a short honeymoon trip Mr. Robinson will go to Camp Meade and his bride will live with her parents until the close of the war.

Delaware County

On Sunday the soldiers camping at Bywood have a specially fine dress parade, and there are always ever and ever so many persons there to watch it. You know, the camp is a very large one, for virtually the whole Third Regiment is out there. It is just at that bright, still part of the day that comes before dusk that the men assemble in a huge green field for their dress parade. They all march in an endless line of them, and form into long, long rows, with four important-looking machine-gunners at the back. And there is a band, of course, which marches all around the field, playing wonderful martial music. After the band has finished its march all is still for a moment, and then comes the "Star Spangled Banner," when all the soldiers, standing with hared heads, how splendidly the soldiers all march! It is said that everybody makes mistakes at times, but that cannot be true of those boys when they are marching, for they do it all perfectly, and we surely ought to be proud of them as we watch them!

Speaking of the camp at Bywood, Miss Frances Taylor, of Media, had a small soldier-buddy at her home recently. There were six of the Third Regiment boys there and six girls, too, and of course they all had a wonderfully good time.

Miss Harris, of West Philadelphia, has been visiting Mr. Arthur Wiltshire in Media for the last week.

Not so long ago some small youngsters of the neighborhood had a Red Cross party at the home of Mrs. Wiltshire. There were thirteen of them—her own three children, Frank, Jane and Arthur Wiltshire; Dorothy, Anna and Arthur Fairland, Grace and Arthur Matthews, and Miss Wiltshire, who will be married in the near future. They were all very happy, and they had a very successful time. But it really was every bit as successful for how much do you think those small children made? Forty-two dollars! And weren't they proud to piece to pieces all over to the Red Cross! And having the fair was just lots of fun, too; for it was like really, truly, "playing store" to stand behind a table and sell things to people. They sold cake, candy, fancy articles, ice-cream cones and fruits and vegetables. Wasn't that some variety? And think of the children collecting those things all evening long! The fruits and vegetables came from different war gardens, which made it all the nicer, as this was a Red Cross affair.

Of course, the "grown-ups," too, have been generous to the Red Cross. Mr. Vglar, who is the proprietor of the Pastime Theatre in Media, has been giving one-half of the proceeds from every Wednesday evening performance during June, July and August.

The Rev. F. M. Limerick and Mrs. Limerick and their children have returned to Ridley Park from Stonehouse, N. Y.

Mr. Van Kleeck has also returned home with his children. They have been in New York State during the last month.

Mrs. Z. L. Hall has been down at Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, during August, and she expects to stay there for the month of September, also.

Frederick J. Michell spent the week-end in Philadelphia, where he has a cottage. Mr. Frederick Michell, Jr., has been out to St. Louis for about ten days.

Mrs. Frederick Schermerhorn and her children have been inuring around for two weeks. They have been through New Hope, the Delaware Water Gap and all that beautiful country around there.

Some more motorists are the W. K. Mitchells, who with their daughter, Miss Florence Mitchell, and Miss Helen Atherholt, motored to Ocean City, where they will stay all today.

The F. W. Sinclairs and their two daughters, Miss Marcella Sinclair and Miss Ruth Sinclair, returned Monday from Atlantic City. They have been down there for three weeks.

WAR GARDENS THRIVE

IN DOYLESTOWN

The National Farm School at Doylestown is a great monument to the glorious spirit of the Rev. Joseph Krauskopf. Two young women from North Philadelphia, who had a great desire to visit the school, went to Doylestown last week, but their bumps of location being out of commission they became mixed in their geography and arrived instead at the Bucks County Poor Farm. When the Rev. William Patton, of the Wayne Presbyterian Church, was stationed at Doylestown, most of the beautiful homes of that section were owned by Presbyterians. A Methodist bishop visiting Doctor Patton was taken out driving by his host. As they approached each handsome place the host entertained his guests by pointing out the great beauty and adding, "Mr. —, one of our elders, lives there." And again, "Mr. —, of our church, lives there," and so on. Finally they came to the Poor Farm, and when the minister said, "That is our Poor Farm," the bishop with a twinkle in his eye said dryly, "I suppose all the Methodists are in there."

Quite a few residents of Queen lane, Falls of Schuylkill, are leaving for a week of the ocean. For one feels that it has been a summer without a vacation if the seashore has been left out. Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson have left for Atlantic City, which is always at its best in September, when the rush is over.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hunter left recently for Ocean City, N. J., and will remain through September.

Mrs. Robert Hill and her four daughters have just returned from Ocean City. Another resident of Queen lane who has returned from Ocean City is the Rev. A. Perelut Hodgson, pastor of the Falls Methodist Episcopal Church.

Negro Refuses to Pay Bill and Starts to Shoot Up Restaurant

After attempting to settle a restaurant bill with a fusillade of bullets, Wilson Kendrick of 919 Jesup street, a negro, was today held in $1000 bail for court by Magistrate Neff.

The prisoner, according to the police, refused to pay for a meal he had eaten in a Chinese restaurant on Race street near Tenth. After a few angry words he pulled an automatic pistol and started to shoot up the place.

Regardless of the shots, Policeman O'Donnell, of the motorcycle squad, tackled the negro and knocked him senseless with a short-arm jolt to the jaw.

LATEST IN THE MODES

AT LIT FASHION SHOW

New Shades and Shapes, Colors and Contours in Gowns and Millinery

Autumn's colors, augmented by new shades, contours and combinations, came into their own today at the annual fall opening of the millinery and women's apparel sections at Lit Brothers.

Narrower skirts, slightly longer and draped from the hips marked the costumes, which showed the sensible, large pockets that women are appreciating. Prominent among the shades of the dresses, which range from evening gowns to workaday suits, is the new Concord plum color. Other favorites are beet root, taupe, charcoal, Java brown, navy blue and black. Materials much used include velvets, satins, velours de laine, silver cloth, burellas worsteds, Oxfords, tricot, broadcloth and taffeta.

A simple smartness is predominant among the hats. New color combinations are cerise and green, sand and black, gray and blue, black and gold, navy blue and purple and sand and blue. Predominant colors are purple, navy blue, brown and black. Novelties are soft hats, brilliant bird hats, all-feather turbans, beaded brims, shirred crowns, jets, just and pin ornaments and ostrich feather and buckle "fancies."

The millinery influence is almost negligible at the fall fashion show which will continue tomorrow and Thursday. This is probably due to the ever-increasing number of soldiers' uniforms, for which the feminine costumes must act as foils. There is no change in the general prices of the hats and dresses.

POLICE AFTER "MASHERS"

Plain Clothes Men Mingle With Crowds Uptown and Make Arrest

A campaign against "mashers" near Broad street and Montgomery avenue has been launched by the police of the Nineteenth and Oxford streets station following numerous complaints.

To break up the practice of young men making insulting remarks to passing women and girls, plain-clothes policemen have been detailed to mingle with the crowds at night. The first arrest resulted in John Donnelly, thirty-eight years old, Eleventh street above Montgomery avenue, being placed under $300 bond to keep the peace. He was arrested last night by Sergeant Mortimer.
